City schools seeking area businessmen to implement Junior Achievement program

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK
In an effort to decrease the number of student drop outs in the Bay St. Louis-Waveland School District, officials are finalizing details for a Junior Achievement program to be implemented.
"Junior Achievement provides students with experiences directly related to the real world," said Karen Hill, vice president of operations for Junior Achievement of Mississippi.
Hill also said although there is no statistical records to provide proof, this program has been credited with encouraging students not to drop out of school.
Students seem to listen to what businessmen say when they go in the classroom and tell them how important it is to remain in school, she said.

According to School Superintendent Roger Oge, the Junior Achievement program will also serve other functions.
"First, this program will bring the business community and the public school system together in a collaborative effort," he said.
"It will also provide students with knowledge and appreciation of the free enterprise system," Oge added.
Implementation of the program is planned for ninth grade students in this school year.
Bay Senior High Principal Frank Ladner said the district is "ready to go" with Project Business.

Now area businesses to work with the program must be located, he added.
In Project Business, an executive from an area business visits in the classroom one hour a week for 12 weeks to give students pertinent facts about the business world.
Ladner said a field trip to the business may also be scheduled.
There is a tax-deductible charge of $495 for businesses to participate in the program but Hill said many of the business consultants say they get more from the program than the students.
The fee provides funding for lesson plans and activity materials for the business consultant; support materials for consultant and teacher; a work study guide book for each student; and liability insurance for all participants.
Funding for training sessions for consultant and teacher, support services by Junior Achievement staff and recognition for all participants is also provided in the one-time fee.
Any business which may be interested in participating is asked to contact Frank Ladner at the senior high school, 467-6611.
In the program, students are taught seven basic topics: Introduction to Economics; America's Economic System; Enterprise in Action; Supply, Demand and Market Place; Personal Economics; Finance; and Global Economics.
While the Project Business portion of the Junior Achievement program is targeted for eighth and ninth grade students, there are similar program for grades 10-12 and elementary school.

The high school program is Applied Economics and is described as a "high-tech, high-touch way to teach economics to high school students."
A business man also visits the classroom in this program but students have the opportunity to minutes if people are waiting behind the voter marking the ballot and 10 minutes if no one is waiting, he added.

The election commission secretary suggested that voters plan to visit the polls, which will be open from 7 a.m. until 7 p.m., between 8 a.m. and 11 a.m., which are typically times of lower turnout.

The heaviest turnouts are usually right after opening and right before closing, he added.

In addition, Gottschalk asks that voters look over the sample ballots appearing in this newspaper on pages 1B and 1C.

"Use them to make your selections before you go to the polls," he said. "If you make your decision in the booth, you will take up more than five minutes and then you will be asked to leave."

The first page of the ballot will be a referendum on Enhanced 911 emergency service, also known as E-911.

E-911 is an emergency service which automatically routes calls to local law enforcement, ambulance services, fire departments and other emergency agencies, where a computer automatically provides emergency personnel with the address from which the call is being placed or even a pay telephone.

Such a referendum was proposed in Hancock County last year by the board of supervisors, but would have required a local and private bill for authorization. New legislation passed during the 1987 session has allowed the E-911 referendum for any county in Mississippi.

The referendum will be included in both the Democratic and Republican primaries.

The remainder of the ballot will be the primary elections.

"That prevents us from needing a third set of voting machines, ballot boxes and pollworkers," Gottschalk explained.

While individual voters will have a time limit in which to vote, voters in general will have an extra hour.

One of the new election laws that became effective in January has changed the time the polls are closed from 6 p.m. until 7 p.m.

The voting locations for the primaries will be the same as for the last election in all precincts.

Illegal drug laboratory raided Wednesday at Bay residence

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK
Law enforcement officers raided an illegal drug laboratory in a Webster Street home Wednesday afternoon where methamphetamine was being produced.
Approximately one pound of the unfinished product was seized which if had been completed would have been worth approximately $70,000, according to Alvin Ladner of the Hancock County Sheriff's Office.

Robert Gene Rader, 34, of New Mexico was arrested and charged with manufacturing methamphetamine, an illegal stimulant.
The raid followed a month-long investigation by numerous law enforcement agencies.

According to Ladner, if the product had continued cooking it would have probably been ready for distribution by the weekend.

A 24-hour surveillance of the residence had been underway gathering information to time the execution of the search warrant when the product was being made, Ladner said.

The investigation originated in Mobile, Ala. by the United States Drug Enforcement Administration in early July.

In the raid numerous chemicals and other paraphenalia used to produce methamphetamine were seized.

Chamber conducting commuter bus survey

Persons who commute from the Bay-Waveland area to New Orleans are being sought by the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce to complete a commuter bus survey for the county.

The survey was requested at a meeting last week of public officials from Waveland, Bay St. Louis and Hancock County, along with Dennis C. Marshall, Greyhound Bus Lines district manager for the New Orleans area.

Marshall stated at the meeting that Greyhound Bus Lines are looking into the possibility of starting a daily commuter service, and they are also interested in how many people would utilize it.

This survey will be completed by the end of August, and we must have a minimum of 25 to establish the service," said Olivia Milner, executive director of the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce.
"The number of people interested will determine the cost of the service, and we feel this could also make the area more attractive to new residents."

Any person who travels to New Orleans, whether for work or for just shopping, and who would be interested in this commuter bus service, should contact the Chamber of Commerce at 467-9048 with pick up point and destination in the New Orleans area.

August Republican voters ineligible in Demo runoff

JACKSON—Anyone who votes in the August 4 Republican primary will not be permitted to vote in the Democratic runoff on August 25, State Democratic Party Chair Steve Patterson announced.

Poll workers at the August 25 Democratic second primary runoff will be instructed to challenge the ballot of anyone who is listed as having voted in the Republican primary.

State law provides that no person may participate in a primary unless he or she intends to support the nominations made in that primary. Therefore, no voter may participate in the election of nominees for more than one party.

Anyone who attempts to vote in both primaries on August 4 will be guilty of a misdemeanor under state law.

Mississippi Power Company will open a new local office at 255 East Second St. in Pass Christian Monday.

The 2,400 square foot facility will replace the old office at 118 Davis Ave. for all customer service functions in the Pass Christian area.

Besides an increased customer service area, the new building includes a drive-up window for bill payments, a larger parking area and a meeting room for public use.

"This new facility gives us more space and will make it easier for our customers to do business with us," MPC's Pass Christian Area Supervisor Bernard Jacob said.

Customers can make bill payments, apply for service or service disconnection, inquire about bills or make any other necessary arrangements with Mississippi Power Company in the new office.

The office will be open Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Victims of Intoxicated Driving endorses candidate slate

Victims Of Intoxicated Drivers Of The State of Mississippi (VOID), a group which lobbied in the past legislative session to get seven bills passed for victims in the state of Mississippi, has endorsed several candidates in the Aug. 4 election.

"We would like to announce that the Victims Of Intoxicated Drivers Of The State Of Mississippi has endorsed Glenn Cannon for district attorney, Mike Moore for state attorney general and state representative Bob Short and Clyde Woodfield of Gulfport, Jim Simpson of Long Beach and Tommy Golpt of Biloxi in their re-election bids," said VOID founder Wanda Palmer of Gulfport.

"These endorsements came because of the efforts and support these men have given to our victims' and their families," she added.

"Glenn Cannon was endorsed because for the last two years as city prosecutor for the City of Gulfport, he has strived for stiffer penalties on the drunk drivers and the habitual offenders and we feel that as our district attorney this dedication for the rights of our victims' and their families will be even greater," Palmer stated.

"Mike Moore set up the first Victims/Witness Program in the state of Mississippi three years ago and lobbied to get support for our victims. With the increase of children being sexually molested and the increase of our victims' needing support within our judicial system Mike decided to do something about it on his own. As our attorney general we feel that he will continue this battle," the organization spokesman continued.

"The endorsements for our state representatives came because of their efforts, dedication and commitment to do whatever they could in the legislation this past year. They along with our other legislators are examples of truly dedicated officials who can make a difference in the victims lives because they really care about the people they represent," she said.

Supervisors close to selling old Hancock General Hospital

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors may have found a buyer for the vacant Hancock General Hospital building on Dunbar Avenue.

According to Board Attorney Gerald Gex, Forno-Gray Limited, a New Orleans-based corporation, has an option on purchasing the building for $400,000.

"It's not final. Whether they take it is based on three contingencies," Gex said Thursday.

The three contingencies include granting of a certificate of need for the old hospital's proposed use, a personal care nursing facility.

The other two contingencies include any necessary zoning change, which the City of Bay St. Louis has the authority to grant, and a buyer's inspection of the air conditioning, heating and other systems.

The option is good until Dec. 31, 1987.

According to Gex, the building has not been vacant for an entire year and therefore no zoning change should be needed, which would reduce the number of contingencies to two.

The board did not discuss how the $400,000 would be used if the sale is completed.

The board had previously discussed the possibility of selling the building for use as a nursing home facility and all five supervisors expressed approval of that purpose.

The building was vacated earlier this year when the Hancock General Hospital operation was moved to the new Hancock Medical Center off US-90 and Drinkwater Road.

Also on Thursday, the supervisors:

—Approved a proposal to help the City of Bay St. Louis obtain 70-30 percent match funding for improvement of the bluff at Uman Avenue as a park;

—Received a request for air conditioning and window improvements at the old county rest home, now occupied by the Hancock County Extension Service, and appropriated $475 for repair materials;

—Discussed the procedure necessary for moving the Hancock County Landfill, presently on leased buffer zone property in Catahoula, to a new site;

—Accepted a donation of a metal building for the county sheriff's department farm from Dr. and Mrs. Patrick L. Pierce of Harrison County.

ty, commended them for the donation and commended Hancock County resident Emmett Niolet for arranging the donation; —Requested that Southern District Highway Commissioner reduce the speed limit on US-90 in the vicinity of Hancock Medical Center;

—Accepted two appointments to the board of commissioners of Hancock County Wastewater District No. 1, including Erskine F. Skelton of Shoreline Park, named by Beat Four Supervisor Sam Perniciaro, and Michael Reynolds of Palmetto Drive, named by Beat One Supervisor Bert Courge, to replace Ellis Cuevas, who resigned; and —Accepted $37,000 in Pearl River Basin Development District funds to pay part of the construction of a boat launch and pier at Pearlinton.

The board's next regular meeting is 9 a.m. Monday in the upstairs boardroom of the Hancock County Courthouse.

RICHARD F. KILEY

Thermal Associates, Inc., to locate at Stennis

BY DENA BISNETTE

A new manufacturing industry is planning to open in September at Stennis Industrial Airpark in Kiln.

Richard F. Kiley, president of Thermal Associates Inc., and Hancock County Port and Harbor Executive Director Harold Olsen met Thursday with the Hancock County Board of Supervisors to announce the firm's decision.

According to Kiley, the firm is working through Gulf Coast Business Services Corporation in Gulfport to fill the 20 initial jobs the new assembly plant will provide.

Thermal Associates, based in Massachusetts, specializes in heat sink parts, which draw heat away from semiconductors in electronic equipment.

The plant, which will be located in a temporary facility until a new county-financed, 10,000 square foot facility is completed in November, will require machinist, assemblers, die-makers and computer literate clerical workers.

"The quality of the candidates we have to interview has been highly promising," Kiley told the supervisors. "There is a lot of untapped talent here."

The supervisors approved the Port and Harbor Commission's recommendation for a 15-year lease-purchase agreement on the plant facility, which Olsen said will cost about $175,000 to $180,000 to build and will total about $30,000 with the site added.

"Thermal Associates' location in Hancock County will make a significant economic impact on our area. Their fine reputation in a growing industry is exactly the type of company we want to attract to Hancock County," Olsen added.

The commission was assisted in its efforts to attract the new industry by Mississippi Power Company and Pearl River Junior College in addition to Gulf Coast Business Services.

The junior colleges vocational education program will handle the transportation of Thermal's equipment from the Massachusetts plant to Hancock County.

"The chamber has made every effort to spread the word in the county concerning voter registration and now we urge all voters to get out on Tuesday to go to the polls, which will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

EDITORIAL

It is important to vote Tuesday

On Tuesday Mississippians across the state will be holding primary elections for persons seeking offices from governor to constable.

Many of the primary winners will be those who will represent the people on a state or local level for the next four years.

Some races will be settled with run-offs later in the month.

The winners of the primaries, along with a few independent candidates, will vie in the General Election to be held in November.

This is a very important election, and all qualified electors need to be sure and vote for the candidates of their choice.

Polls will be open until 7 p.m., which is an hour longer than normal.

Some ballots are long and usually during such a primary election there is a rush of qualified electors just as the polls open and then again near closing time.

One election official tells us the best time to vote is between 8 a.m. and noon, as voting is usually light during that period.

The ballots are long and a qualified elector may want to familiarize himself or herself with who the candidates are before going to the polls.

Sample ballots are printed on Pages 1-B and 1-C of this issue of The Sea Coast Echo for the convenience of our readers.

Remember, poll managers can limit a qualified elector to five minutes when someone is waiting to vote and ten minutes when no one is waiting to vote.

Since our county is divided into precincts and districts, qualified electors will be able to vote only on those candidates in their respective areas in several races.

Qualified electors voting in the Democratic or Republican Primaries will all also be able to vote in the Special Election on the Referendum on the Emergency Telephone (E-911).

All qualified electors are encouraged to be sure to vote on Tuesday, as every vote counts.

Remember, this is the first step in selecting our state and local leaders who will represent us for the next four years.

The Council reported that 44.1 percent of the House candidates and 47 percent of the Senate candidates responded to the survey on the county unit and tort reform.

Of the House candidates, 13 percent said they do not favor mandatory county unit and less than one percent had not decided on the issue. Of the Senate candidates, 14.2 percent were undecided.

On tort reform, the candidates were asked to indicate a position on three issues — elimination of joint and several liability; reduction of the statute of limitations from six to three years; and imposition of penalties for frivolous lawsuits.

An end to joint and several liability had the support of 66.9 percent of the House candidates and 60.7 percent of the Senate candidates. Reducing the statute of limitations was supported by 79.1 percent of the House candidates and 82.1 percent of the Senate candidates. And, 88.4 percent of the House candidates and 85.7 percent of the Senate candidates favored a penalty for frivolous lawsuits.

Both tort reform and mandatory county unit legislation will be priorities of the Council during the 1988 legislative session.

VOTE

THE CANDIDATES OF YOUR CHOICE ON Tuesday

Quotables by Cuevas

One of the very important issues on the Ballot for a Special Election on Tuesday in Hancock County will be the Enhanced 911 emergency service.

Local public officials met early in July with representatives of South Central Bell to discuss this very important emergency telephone service.

The enhanced system still requires a caller to dial 911, but provides a computer read-out of the address from which the call is made, even if that location is a public telephone.

This could be of a tremendous help to citizens in times of emergencies.

There is a 911 system already being used by fire departments in Hancock County, but the enhanced system is a step above the older system.

We are voting for the 911 emergency service.

We received a telephone call this week from Mattie North, president of the Clement R. Bontemps American Legion Auxiliary Unit No. 139 about providing free transportation to the polls on Tuesday.

The Auxiliary president said anyone residing in the Bay St. Louis and Waveland areas in need of transportation to the polls can call her at 467-5770.

Auxiliary members will be standing by throughout the two communities and will be happy to provide transportation to voters.

The service is being provided in order for everyone to have an opportunity to vote on Tuesday for the candidates of their choice.

Summer Cooling Tips

Keeping comfortable during Mississippi's hot summer days is not easy. With increasing energy costs, many Mississippians are seeking alternatives to using the air conditioner.

To keep cool and save energy, consider the following alternatives:

—Cooking outdoors is a lot of fun as an energy saver. It avoids adding heat and humidity to the indoor environment.

—Serving cold foods is another alternative. Many vegetables—even those we normally cook—are delicious if eaten raw.

—Using the pressure cooker uses less and lower heat and will reduce cooking time.

—Using the microwave, especially for cooking small amounts of food, can also keep the kitchen cooler.

—Making use of portable appliances, such as a crock pot or mini oven, also reduce heat in the kitchen.

—Making the most of heat when using the oven can be achieved by cooking several foods together or in batches to be saved for another day.

—Thawing frozen foods (unless package specifies otherwise) before cooking will reduce cooking time and fuel consumption.

Without Air-Conditioning

—Keep windows and outside doors closed during the hottest hours of the day.

—Open windows on opposite side of the house to provide good cross-ventilation.

—Use fans (even the largest) to cut the cost of operating an air conditioner. The window, whole-house, or attic ventilating fans are designed to either push hot air out of the house through vents or to draw cool air in through windows. Ceiling fans and small portable fans can be used to create a cool breeze and to circulate the air within a single room.

—Shade the house with seasonal trees and shrubs. Particularly, the south, southwest and west sides will lower temperatures in the house by several degrees.

With Air-Conditioning

—Set your thermostat at 78° during the summer for the most energy-efficient indoor temperature.

—Set the thermostat to the "Off" position in the summer during unoccupied periods.

—Close drapes to block out sunlight during the summer.

—Turn off window air-conditioners when leaving a room for several hours. Less energy will be used when cooling the room later than if the unit were left running.

Anytime

—Keep out direct sunlight with vertical louvers, awnings or overhangs on the outside of windows, or draw draperies, blinds and shades indoors.

—Keep light low or off.

—Open windows instead of using the air-conditioning or electric fan on cooler days and during cooler hours.

—Consider turning off the furnace pilot light in the summer, but be sure to re-ignite it before the furnace is turned on again.

—Lastly, have you considered psychological effects in decorating your home? Colors such as blue and green feel cooler. Neutral colors used in the overall scheme add cool accents. Psychologically, occupants may feel cooler in a more open room arrangement where pieces of furniture are placed further apart.

—Now, before you turn the "On" switch to the air conditioner, consider these alternatives for keeping cool!!!

Citizen help needed in county animal care

July 31, 1987
The Editor
Sea Coast Echo
Bay St. Louis

Sir:

Many businesses in the Bay St. Louis, Waveland and Diamondhead area have allowed the Humane Society to place collection jars.

These poor animals are not responsible for being dumped, abandoned and uncared for—so they need our help! Your donations are helping to build an extension to the existing Animal Shelter. The more room we have at the shelter, the more animals we can care for and hopefully adopt out.

Donations also help towards injured animals where owners are unable to bear the costs of veterinarians and for financial aid to owners to help defray the costs of spaying and neutering where there is hardship.

Spaying and neutering of pets is very, very important.

For the period May 31 to June 30, 46 dogs and 52 cats were brought to the shelter by owners who did not want to or could not keep them anymore.

During the same period, 103 dogs and 164 cats were euthanized. These figures do not include dogs and cats picked up by the animal warden.

The good news about these figures is that six dogs and one cat were reclaimed by owners and 17 dogs and seven cats were adopted.

Be sure to call the Animal Shelter (467-0230) if you have lost your pet.

It appears to the writer a mind-boggling fact that 267 animals had to be destroyed in one month in Hancock County. If owners would be responsible and have their pets spayed and neutered, this figure would be reduced drastically.

So, citizens of Hancock County, please help with your generosity. In turn, animals will benefit.

Visit the Humane Society Flea Market at the Civic Center, Coleman Avenue, Waveland which is open Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays, 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., and Saturdays, 10 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

And don't forget to visit the shelter to look for lost pets and for adoptions.

Sincerely,
Janice Lynn

REPORT TO MISSISSIPPIANS

TRADE CHANGES MUST BE MADE TO PROTECT JOBS

In recent years, the United States has gone from a leader in the world trade market to a deficit position. Increasingly, American products are being undersold by foreign products, often cheaply produced and unfairly subsidized.

As a result, thousands of workers in the automobile, textile, agricultural and other markets have suffered wage cuts and, in many instances, lost jobs through plant closings. Small communities which depend heavily on these plants have been devastated through lost tax revenue and rising unemployment rates.

Our international trade deficit has increased each year since 1980 to a record rate of nearly $170 billion in 1986. While there has been slight improvement in the last few months, experts agree that large deficits are likely to persist for the next few years. Clearly, the current national trade situation is a matter of grave concern.

Small, rural states such as Mississippi have been particularly hard hit by trade problems. Farmers, already struggling to get ahead, have suffered as the nation's agricultural exports steadily decreased from $40 billion in 1980 to only $25 estimated for 1987.

In the textile and apparel industry, a number of communities have been adversely affected by plant closings. The approximately 130,000 Mississippians who depend on the textile and apparel industry have suffered because state operations could not compete with the high volume of imports from other countries.

Our country now faces an overwhelming situation, one that will not go away by itself. While I have long been an advocate of free trade, I believe that we must make some short-term adjustments in our trade laws to protect the vital jobs that are being threatened.

Both the Senate and the House of Representatives have passed trade bills recently which would strengthen our trade laws, improve the management of our trade strategy, and negotiate trade agreements with other countries that would be more reciprocal in nature. This important legislation, currently being considered by a conference committee, will enable us to meet the challenge of reversing our deteriorating trade situation.

Trade action, while vital to our economic well-being, must be measured, however, to insure that we avoid making the cure worse than the disease. We must fashion a solution to our trade problems that invites mutual trade rather than retaliation. We must be assured that our trade policies do not protect one segment of industry while creating additional burdens on another.

I am pleased by the work that state officials in Mississippi have done in encouraging trade with other nations. The recent announcement of a multi-million dollar sale of agricultural products to Taiwan is a great step forward in rebuilding our standing in the world market.

With efforts on all parts, our trade situation can be changed. Together, we can insure a market for the products of our state and our country. I will continue to support this vital trade legislation and to work for the best interests of American industry.

Committee moves COLA, other major vets bills through House before August recess

WASHINGTON—More than 2.2 million veterans will receive a 4.1 percent increase in their monthly VA compensation checks if legislation approved today by the House Veterans' Affairs Committee is enacted. The increase would become effective December 1 and would be payable in January checks.

The compensation increase is one of five major bills ordered reported by the Committee in hopes of bringing them before the House for consideration prior to the Congressional recess which begins August 8.

"Our work for the year is far from over," said Committee Chairman G. V. "Sonny" Montgomery (D-MS), "but it is a great feeling of satisfaction to know that in these first seven months of the 100th Congress, we have conducted more than 30 hearings in the process of developing and clearing legislation that strengthens every major program administered by the Veterans Administration."

In June, the House approved bills that would: reinstate the travel allowance for many veterans who travel to and from VA medical facilities for care and treatment; establish an entitlement to outpatient care for certain veterans and prevent the VA from relocating any Vet Center without first submitting to the Congress plans and justification for the move; and authorize additional funds for and extend veterans' job training program that has put approximately 50 thousand veterans back to work.

Earlier this year, the House voted to increase per diem rates paid by the Veterans Administration to state-run veterans' facilities; passed a law enacted a measure that makes the Montgomery GI Bill a permanent program; and successfully denied potentially devastating cuts in VA programs by securing a current services budget for the agency of $27 billion in FY '88.

Rep. Gerald Solomon (R-NY), the Committee's Ranking Minority Member, attributes much of the Committee's success to the "fair, wise and gracious" leadership of Montgomery. "In our Committee, you may be sure nothing languishes—hearings and markups start on time—and with his deft guidance, bills move smoothly and promptly from hearings to markups and then to the floor of the House," said Solomon.

Compensation COLA
The cost-of-living adjustment, reviewed annually by the Committee and the Congress, is for veterans who receive VA compensation benefits for service-connected disabilities. The 4.1 percent increase approved today by the Committee would also apply to dependency and indemnity compensation (DIC) benefits paid to approximately 265 thousand spouses and 48 thousand children of veterans who either died in service or who died of service-incurred causes.

The Committee ignored an Administration proposal to tie the compensation COLA to the consumer price index in the same manner as the non-service-connected pension program and Social Security. The Committee claimed that such action "would remove from the Congressional arsenal a vehicle through which periodic and necessary improvements to the [compensation] programs may be made."

New benefits

The COLA bill (H.R. 2945), introduced by Rep. Douglas Applegate (D-OH), would benefit certain former prisoners of war by adding three conditions—peripheral neuropathy due to trauma, spastic colon, and peptic (duodenal) ulcers—to the list of ailments for which the VA may pay compensation benefits to eligible veterans. Applegate's Sub-committee on Compensation, Pension and Insurance reported that the additions "would appear warranted in view of the lack of medical records maintained during captivity and in consideration of the hardships endured by this group." The measure would also drop from six months to 90 days the period of captivity required to qualify for VA dental care.

"I know of no other group of Americans more deserving of our special attention and consideration than those who suffered the terrible consequences of being held as prisoners of war," said Applegate.

Atomic vets

The Committee also ordered reported H.R. 1811, which would authorize the VA to presume for compensation purposes that certain diseases suffered by veterans may be the result of exposure to radiation while on active duty.

If a veteran was a member of the American occupation forces at Hiroshima and Nagasaki, Japan, or participated in the atmospheric testing of nuclear devices between 1945 and 1963, he or she could be compensated by the VA for the following if it becomes manifest within 30 years of the "radiation-risk activity": leukemia, bronchogenic carcinoma, and cancer of the thyroid, breast, pharynx, esophagus, stomach, small intestine, colon, and pancreas.

Beginning in 1945 and continuing until 1963, the U.S. Government exploded approximately 235 nuclear devices in the atmosphere over the American Southwest and Pacific Ocean. The Department of Defense estimates that approximately 220 thousand military personnel participated in those tests.

"The uncertainties of veterans exposed to atomic radiation may never be resolved, and I do not believe we can ask them to wait any longer for compensation for their claims, which they have made in good faith," said Rep. Solomon.

AIDS commission
H.R. 2881, also approved by the Committee, would establish a 15-member national commission to consider and make recommendations on national policy and priorities with respect to Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome (AIDS).

According to the bill's author, Rep. J. Roy Rowland (D-GA), the commission would consider the appropriate roles for Federal, state, and local governments, as well as the private sector, regarding AIDS research, testing, confidentiality of test results, treatment and care of AIDS patients, prevention of transmission, and education.

The commission membership would include recognized experts in the scientific and medical communities. The bill has been referred to the Committee on Energy and Commerce as well.

"We have never faced a disease so deadly, so rapidly spreading, and with such complex moral, legal, and political ramifications," said Rowland.

"The level of emotion, the diversity of opinion, and the intensity of philosophical arguments which have come to dominate the discussions and debates regarding a national public health response partly result from a lack of knowledge and from fear. Time will be required to answer some question, but there is much that can be done with what is known, provided there is a forum in which policy can be formulated," he said.

Montgomery called the proposed commission "a good beginning," adding, "We have lost too much time already." He noted that the VA alone has treated over two thousand AIDS patients since September 1983 and expects a caseload of another twelve thousand by 1991. The VA estimates a cost of $20,000 per patient per year.

Housing bill
Homebuying veterans would experience a greater likelihood of finding financing for higher-priced homes under a housing bill approved by the Committee. H.R. 2672 also would decrease the amount of veteran's indebtedness should he default on a low to moderately priced home mortgage backed by a guaranty from the Veterans Administration.

"This reform measure, one of the most comprehensive since the inception of the VA home loan guaranty program, calls for improvements on two fronts: assisting veterans in purchasing homes and helping veterans keep them," said Rep. Marcy Kaptur (D-OH), Chairwoman of the Veterans' Affairs Subcommittee on Housing and Memorial Affairs and author of the legislation.

Under current home loan guaranty policy, the Veterans Administration guarantees a lender 60 percent of the loan amount, up to $27,500. H.R. 2672 would change the formula to 40 percent of the loan amount, up to $40,000.

The increased dollar cap makes higher loan amounts less risky to lenders, who will grant VA loans of up to four times the guaranty without requiring a down payment. The change would also result in lower liabilities for the borrower on small to moderate loans, the category in which a greater percentage of foreclosures take place. The bill would require increased efforts toward servicing loans and counseling delinquent homeowners so as to avoid foreclosures (the rate of VA foreclosures increased by 18.1 percent from 1985 to 1986) and would authorize loans up to a maximum of $8,400 to veterans facing foreclosure.

Kaptur's bill calls for a two-year extension of the one percent funding fee required of a veteran receiving a VA home loan guaranty. The VA uses proceeds from the one percent fee to help pay claims.

The measure would authorize additional loans so that prospective purchasers may rehabilitate properties acquired by the VA; authorize the VA to discount properties to groups who would use them to assist homeless veterans; allow homeowners who do not reside in the home (such as military personnel who are stationed elsewhere), to refinance their loans; and free a veteran from liability if his loan is assumed and the purchaser defaults on his obligation to pay.

Cemetery program
H.R. 2957, a cemetery bill ordered reported by the Committee would authorize the VA to:

- Make contributions to local authorities for construction of traffic controls, road improvements or other devices adjacent to VA national cemetery for purposes of allowing safe ingress or egress;
- Provide graveliners for use in VA national cemeteries and Arlington National Cemetery; and
- Place flat markers on gravesites of cremated remains (garden niches).

WHEN YOU TALK, SHE LISTENS! VICTIM'S RIGHTS ARE PROTECTED BY LAW

I think we all understand what laws and government are about. But why laws rather than just the will of man himself?

Our society is a democracy. A free society, hopefully a disciplined society, a united society. If we are committed to these free doctrines we must respect and protect the rights of individuals within our society.

My individual rights extend only to the point that they do not infringe upon or interfere with your rights. If my conduct jeopardizes your life or property, then they have extended beyond the intent of freedom.

In today's society, too often people do tread upon another's individual rights. The judicial arm of our democracy is called upon to pass judgement according to the laws set forth by our society.

The pendulum of the court's opinion has, in recent years, swung far toward the rights of an offender. How about the rights of a victim? Does not the victim, the person who has suffered the wrong, have a legal right to the same protection under law?

The pendulum is swinging back toward solid, basic reality. This year the legislature addressed and passed victim's rights legislation. We have established the victim's right to address the court with a Victim Impact Statement, to correspond with the often court-ordered evaluation report on a defendant.

This law places the responsibility in the hands of the prosecuting attorney to notify the victim of his or her right to prepare a written Victim's Impact Statement for consideration by the judge; and in writing, advise the victim of the date and place of any sentencing hearing.

Another law enacted provides that the District Attorney in each circuit court district shall employ a Victim Assistance Coordinator.

The victim's rights to be protected include protection from harm, to be kept informed as to all court procedures and general procedures, provide information to a probation department, receive information regarding compensation and be present at all public court proceedings.

The duty of the Victim Assistance Coordinator is to ensure the rights afforded to victims are protected. Persons accused or convicted of a criminal offense who receive payment for expressing their thoughts, feelings or opinions concerning such offense shall pay such monies over to the state treasurer for deposit. Payments from the account are made to the victims if the accused person is convicted or enters a plea of guilty to the crime.

We must understand that each of us has the freedom and the ability to function only within the law, only within the boundaries set by men through government.

When the law is broken, the rights of the victim must be protected. In my opinion, the legislation passed was not strong enough. As your Senator, I pledge to work for stronger laws to protect the innocent to protect the victims to make sure the pendulum swings back to what is right.

Webb Warren: from apraxia to astronomy with language disorders

HATTIESBURG—By the time Webb Warren was 2½ years old, his parents knew there was something very different about him.

He couldn't say anything that anybody understood, not a single word," explained Dr. Nettie Etiole DuBard. "Yet, he was an intelligently performing child in every other dimension."

She said Webb's parents, A.J. and Karen Warren of Jackson (Wirtz Road), consulted pediatricians and pediatric neurologists about the problem, but drew a blank. They had two older children, neither of whom experienced similar problems.

It was after Webb reached the age of 3 that the Warrens, following the advice of professionals in the Jackson area, contacted DuBard, a 66-year-old professor and director of the University of Southern Mississippi's School for Children with Language Disorders for the past 25 years.

DuBard, an expert in language disorders, conducted an evaluation of Webb and began a series of diagnostic teaching sessions. She also arranged for tape sessions at intervals to monitor the progress.

"He was limited in receptive skills," she said. "His speech output was unintelligible. He had apraxia, a condition that wouldn't allow him to put the words and sentences together in sequence."

Within "less than six months" of therapy by DuBard and her staff of professional speech therapists, Webb was communicating.

"Webb was with us for roughly three years and in those three years, that family arranged and put the pieces of the puzzle together—providing support of every dimension we could think of for Webb. They came four days a week for half-day sessions, commuting to Hattiesburg from Jackson.

During a portion of his final year of therapy before entering the first grade, Webb attended the Dogwood School, then located in Jackson and presently situated at Flora.

The Dogwood School was established by Webb's parents and friends, who recognized there was a need in the Jackson area for the kinds of services offered at USM.

"Within three years, he was brought from zero to second-grade reading skills," added DuBard, noting Webb's sessions at the USM school ended shortly after he entered the first grade.

DuBard said Webb performed so well in the first and second grades that he was recruited for the Rankin County Attendance Center's Gifted Program, finishing in the "top five" among 10 students who were tested. Now about to enter the sixth grade, Webb remains in the Gifted Program, has shown exceptional abilities in history and social studies, and has expressed an interest in studying astronomy when he gets to college.

"This is an example of a gifted child who had a language learning problem," noted DuBard.

The professor took Webb to the studios of Coast Broadcasting Services July 11 to video-tape a final conversation with the talented youngster, completing the documentation of his remarkable progress.

Webb eloquently discussed his interest in astronomy, history, the Civil War, geoscience and the social studies. He also talked about his hobby of searching for rocks and historical artifacts. He presented DuBard with a piece of petrified wood, a fossil, and she promised to use it as a "paperweight."

The youngster, his mother watching from off camera, said he planned to attend USM, the University of Southern Mississippi, with a math program, although he acknowledged math was his worst subject.

"I don't see math, but you have to know math to be an astronomer," he said.

Five new recruits for the Bay St. Louis Police Department Reserve Unit graduated Friday in ceremonies at Gulfport.

These recruits have recently completed a training program at the Gulfport Police Reserve Academy.

The graduates included Marvin Carter, Linda Davis, Earl Brewer, Emmanuel Scott and Scott Carter.

Following the graduation, three of the recruits, Davis, Scott and Carter, were sworn in as officers.

Participating in the ceremony were Bay St. Louis Police Chief Ray Murphy and Mayor John J. Frankiewicz Jr.

Frankiewicz praised the graduating class for their outstanding performance during the program.

"This program is the most rigorous reserve training in the area," he added.

"We appreciate the city of Gulfport making the program available to our citizens," Frankiewicz said.

Q: My husband and I were driving down a state highway and saw an automobile accident occur. It looked as though one or more persons might be injured. I wanted to stop and try to help the people, but my husband would not stop. He said that if we tried to help any of the people and they were permanently hurt or died, that they, or their heirs could sue us and get a big judgement. Is my husband correct?

A: The Mississippi law says that if you, while exercising reasonable care, render assistance to any injured person at the scene of an emergency, you will not be liable for any damages to the injured person which result from your assistance.

Therefore, you will not be liable for any injuries to a person in need of emergency assistance, if you use reasonable care in assisting them.

Q: Several years ago I opened a small gift shop in my home town. Business was good for a while but now I am in financial trouble. I do not want to declare personal bankruptcy if I can keep from it. Can I declare bankruptcy on the business only?

A: If your business is a sole proprietorship, you are personally liable for all debts of the business, and therefore, you cannot avoid personal bankruptcy. If, however, your business is incorporated, you may declare bankruptcy on the business without declaring personal bankruptcy.

I first would like to thank the people of Hancock County for giving me the opportunity of serving as your Coroner for the past 3½ years.

During this period I have had the task in many instances of dealing with families during a time of severe crisis.

I have attended seminars for Coroners at Southwest Junior College in Summit, South Alabama University of Mobile, and the Federal Bureau of Investigation at USM Gulf Park. I just recently completed and passed the Mississippi State Medical Examiner's required course for Coroners at the Mississippi Law Enforcement Training Academy in Jackson.

TE AUG. 4th FOR A CHANGE IN COUNTY GOVERNMENT

RONALD J. "RONNIE" LaFONTE
CHANCERY CLERK—HANCOCK COUNTY

During my campaign for chancery clerk of Hancock County, I have tried to visit each and every one of our voters—a virtually impossible task. For those of you that I was able to meet and talk to, I thank you for your kindness and support. To those that I did not have the privilege to call upon, I sincerely solicit your vote on election day, Tuesday Aug. 4th.

In the past few weeks of my campaign, I have talked to many Hancock County residents who are looking for a change in our county government. A change, that we believe can move our county forward.

Hancock County is one of the fastest growing counties in the State of Mississippi and it is up to you, the voters, to get out and vote. This is your opportunity to have a voice in our future.

The basis of my campaign has been the issues of Salaries, Industry, Jobs, and the Youth of Hancock County. There is no doubt that we need a change in our present county government, and I am ready, willing, and able to initiate that change.

Stocks are good now

Saving strategies change from past years

Low inflation, low interest rates, and record-breaking stock market growth have changed the face of consumer savings in the past few years.

"Money market funds and certificates of deposit, so popular during the high-inflation early 1980s now pale in comparison to recent stock market gains," said Janet K. Lukens, an area consumer management specialist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

The first quarter of 1987 saw a gain of 25 percent in the Dow Jones Industrials. This exceeded their growth for the entire 1986 year.

But cautious savers still fear the risk involved in the stock market. The best savings strategy will depend on one's own predictions for the future shape of the economy, Lukens said.

She provided some guidelines for making savings decisions. A stable, low inflation economy calls for a different savings strategy than when inflation and interest rates are high and rising. When interest rates are rising, investing short-term and borrowing long-term are usual recommendations. This prevents "locking in" to low earnings and enables consumers to pay off debts with cheaper dollars.

In low inflation, do the opposite, she said. Invest long and borrow short. Money market accounts were a perfect place for emergency funds when interest rates were high. Now they don't pay much more than a passbook savings account. Lukens said emergency funds should equal two to six months net pay, so it may not be wise to keep so much money earning so little.

Somewhat higher rates can be found by tying up a portion of that money in short-term certificates of deposit (one to three years), U.S. Savings Bonds, T-Bills and bond mutual funds.

Locking into high rates with long-term, fixed-income investments may be a good idea if interest rates stay low. For consumers needing safety for their principal, long-term Treasury securities are one way to earn a slightly higher rate.

"It is always wise to stagger maturities," she said. If rates rise, you can reinvest at a higher rate when shorter term investments mature.

Real estate and all hard assets should be held to a minimum in low inflation times. They simply don't appreciate as they do in high inflation, Lukens said. With the double setback of low inflation and tax reform, real estate is even less attractive.

The "hot place" to be in recent months has been the stock market. Returns have far surpassed interest-bearing accounts. These facts omit one primary investment rule "the bigger the potential reward, the bigger the risk of losing money."

For those young enough, rich enough or daring enough, the rewards can be well worth the risk. For those who can't afford losses and depend on interest income, or who stay up nights worrying over losing money, stay away. For those who decide to take the plunge into investing, there are ways to reduce the guesswork and risk.

"Dollar-cost averaging where contributions are made at regular intervals over a period of time can prevent large sums invested at the wrong time," Lukens said. "Mutual fund companies allow you to start small, diversify and take advantage of professional management. For small investors, they can be a good alternative to individual stocks."

Will the profitable stock market continue? Even investment analysts can't agree on the outlook.

"Your assessment of our economy and your needs should dictate your savings and investment strategy," she said.

Little bugs make big potholes

Wherever they travel, most drivers know that somewhere along the way there will probably be the need to swerve to miss an inevitable pothole. And because potholes are so common, few people ever stop to think about what causes them.

Not long ago, however, officials of the Mississippi Highway Department noticed unexplained blistering and cracking along sections of newly overlaid asphalt highways and, in some cases, the crumbling of the asphalt or concrete underneath.

They wondered if the cause might be microbes—minute life forms—that had been found to cause similar highway failures in Kansas in the 1950's. To find out, the highway department asked Mississippi State University microbiology professor Lewis Brown to study the possible role of microbes in highway deterioration.

In a one-year study, Brown and graduate student Timothy Darnell of DeKalb discovered that, indeed, the gas-producing microorganisms were causing asphalt to blister and crack resulting in potholes.

Because the microbes are found everywhere in the soil, Brown said it would be impossible to keep them from the asphalt mixing process.

He said the microorganisms multiply faster when no air is present, which can be the case when a new layer of asphalt is laid over an old one. More potholes form during the summer because the heat increases gas production, he added.

"It is amazing that these tiny creatures can cause so much damage. We found that the gases produced by the microbes are methane and carbon dioxide," Brown said. "Strangely enough, they also make nitrous oxide (laughing gas)."

Brown said laboratory tests demonstrated that washing the sand and gravel with acid prior to incorporation into the asphalt mixes reduced microbial activity. However, a simpler method was found to work even better.

"Incorporation of less than 1 percent of lime into the asphalt mix was even more effective in stopping microbial growth and gas production," he said. Not unexpectedly, this method was also less expensive.

Joe Sheffield of the highway department said that it will be three or four years before the results of the study can be evaluated and put into practical use.

We're taking basic microbiological facts and applying them to useful research," Brown said. "Within five or ten years, we should see a significant decrease in the number of potholes."

FASHION SHOW—Dee Dee Strong, left, and Traci Schexnayder, of the Princess Shoppe Teen Board will be among the models in the upcoming benefit fashion show for Our Lady Academy to be held Wednesday at the Pass Christian Yacht Club. (Staff photo by Brenda Heathcock)

Back to School fashions will be featured Wednesday in "The Best of Times is Now" benefit fashion show for Our Lady Academy.

The show, featuring the Princess Shoppe Teen Board models, will begin at 8 p.m. Aug. 5 at the Pass Christian Yacht Club.

"We plan to make this year's show even more enjoyable for those attending and more profitable for Our Lady Academy," according to Jane Ann Fahey, of the Princess Shoppe. Fahey said more than $1,500 was raised last year during the show for the school.

"We plan to raise even more money this year than last year in the show," she added.

"All the latest in Back-to-School fashions will be featured in the show," she added.

Refreshments will be served during the show and there will be drawings for door prizes.

Fahey reported this will be the last fashion show featuring the 1986-87 Teen Board, which was elected as one of the top three teen boards in the country by Seventeen Magazine.

She also said the new teen board to be selected soon will be the sixth one sponsored by the Princess Shoppe.

Fahey emphasized the teen board does not strictly concentrate on modeling and fashion but also participates in community service projects.

Community organizations served by the board last year include the Hancock County Child Development Center, veterans groups and nursing home patients.

Tickets for the show are $5 and should be purchased in advance. The tickets are available at the Princess Shoppe, Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church rectory, Our Lady Academy and from any teen board member.

Denim varieties making fashion news for teenage students

Wade through the closet of any teenage girl this fall and you'll most likely find a washed denim mini, a wild exotic animal print shirt and a short boxy cropped top or all of the above.

Whether it's for fun or necessity, buying clothes is a top priority to many teen girls. According to a 1986 Rand Youth Poll teenage girls spent $15 billion during last year's back-to-school season.

"K mart recognizes teens as an important customer, especially during the back-to-school season. The teenage girl is extremely fashion conscious and we have changed and upgraded our apparel to meet this demand. More direction has been given to the styling, fashion and value of the merchandise," said Glenn B. Smith, president of K mart Apparel.

One of the hottest looks for fall is denim with the emphasis on stonewashed and frosted treatments.

Results from Seventeen's 1986 Back-to-School/Fall Buying Survey showed approximately $956 million in that category.

Denim has always been popular with teens and college students, but this year it makes an even bigger fashion statement with the addition of frosted denim, stonewashed denim and the faded washed looks," said Clair Ferrante, K mart Apparel's fashion and product development director for Ladies and Girls Apparel.

WEATHERED BLUES

"To keep in step with the current denim trend, K mart's introducing Weathered Blues, a line of ladies apparel which features a grouping of casual sportswear in the washed denim distressed looks. Weathered Blues will be available in all 2,100 K mart stores by Aug. 15," said Smith.

The Weathered Blues collection includes a large variety of tops, bottoms and jackets in stonewashed, frosted denim, indigo blue and black denim. The line offers various styles of jeans, mini and longer length skirts, lined and unlined denim jackets.

The coordinating tops, chambray shirts and sweaters are in pastel shades to continue the feeling of washed-out color. Price points range from $14.97 for tops to $42.97 for denim jackets.

THE LONG AND SHORT OF IT

"Skirts are phenomenal this fall because every length and fabrication is in. There are so many options—long and full or long and straight; short and straight or short and flippy; washed or frosted denim and cotton or knit. The mini is the newest addition for fall with the washed denim mini being the hottest look on high school and college campuses," Ferrante added.

Contrasting looks, long jackets with short skirts and short jackets with long skirts, also play an important part this fall. Knit dressing is still popular with its easy care and comfort.

"A newness of silhouette has updated this category with the addition of cropped tops and short skirts," said Ferrante.

Colors this fall are deep jewel tones with gray and warm neutral shades being very important; there is a lot of emphasis on navy, loden and khaki. Also pastel shades are shown with washed and frosted denim to give the feeling of washed out color.

TO TOP IT OFF

Back-to-school looks in the top category are oversized shirts in stripes and plaids, sweaters with polo collars, cables are still important, as well as rugby shirts. Fashion emphasis will be on the cropped top—short, boxy and slightly oversized.

Another fall fashion look is animal prints and skins.

"Wild and exotic animal prints are happening this fall especially in accessories, shirts, as well as tops and knit silhouettes. Cats are really hot—both wild and domestic," Ferrante added.

Prospects look good for 1987 soybean crop

Farmers in Mississippi have almost completed planting the state's 1987 soybean crop and the condition of the crop remains good in most parts of the state.

According to Dr. Nathan McKinney, an agronomist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service, about 95 percent of the crop is planted and dry weather will allow the other 5 percent to be planted in the next few days.

"We have two crops of soybeans right now," McKinney said. "There is an early crop that was planted the first three weeks of May that looks as good as we could possibly expect. It is probably a better crop at this stage than producers have seen in four or five years."

But, some plantings were delayed by rain and the late drop of beans isn't looking quite as good.

"The late crop is small and has had a lot of water on it," the agronomist said. "But we still have excellent prospects; we just need a few dry days to let fields dry out and get seedlings growing."

There are a few problem areas in the state's estimated 2.2 million acre crop, up 100,000 acres from earlier estimates.

McKinney said producers in the black belt prairie area south from Lee County to Neshoba County were reporting yellowing of plants.

"We are not sure at this point what is causing this problem and three weeks from now we may not even have this problem," McKinney said.

In related agriculture news, county Extension agents throughout the state said wet weather during the week continued to stall field work.

In Scott County, Extension Agent William Goodwin said rains have farmers in a bind.

"Late planted cotton is getting grassy and some producers need to complete soybean planting," Goodwin said. "We need several days of dry weather."

Lincoln County Agent Stanford Qualls said afternoon and evening thundershowers put most farm activities on hold in the county.

Qualls added that pastures are responding well to the rains but insect problems are showing up in crops, gardens and lawns.

In Hinds County, Extension Agent

Willie Bullock said wet weather continued to hamper field work, but soybean producers did manage to complete planting.

Proper thrip control can reduce virus threat

Tomato disease alert

Home gardeners can reduce the spread of tomato spotted wilt virus (TSWV) disease in tomato plants by controlling thrips and removing infected plants.

Thrips are small insects that carry the virus from plant to plant. They feed on surrounding vegetation already infected with the virus and spread the disease by feeding on tomato plants.

The virus is in many cultivated and wild plants, said Dr. James Jarratt, an entomologist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service. Plants that may host the virus are peonies, buttercups, columbines, poppies, begonias and merigolds.

"Thrips rasp away plant tissue and feed on the escaping plant juices," Jarratt said. "If an immature thrip feeds for at least 15 minutes on a plant harboring tomato spotted wilt virus, the insect will likely become a carrier of the disease."

Uninfected thrips that feed on tomato plants generally cause the plants no problems, Jarratt said. Home gardeners should watch for thrips and be prepared to spray if they find symptoms of plant foliage.

Infected tomato plants may show various symptoms, said M. V. Patel, an Extension plant pathologist. Veins on younger foliage may thicken, causing leaves to curl inward and downward. Plant shoots may wither and blacken as the disease progresses.

Fruits are usually reduced in size, distorted and have irregular dark lesions. Such fruit may have an off-flavor but can be eaten if damaged parts are cut away, Patel said.

Plants with disease symptoms should promptly be removed from the garden to prevent thrip infection of healthy tomatoes, he said.

An outbreak of thrips and TSWV may be possible this summer if weather conditions remain dry and warm. These conditions allow immature thrips to survive.

For more information on chemical control of thrips contact the county Extension office.

ETV Brief

FARM FAMILY

"Farmweek" highlights the efforts of a Mississippi farm family to stay on their farm and make a living from it on a program to air at 7:30 p.m., Monday, Aug. 10, on Mississippi ETV.

John and Eva Hines bought a hog operation in Yazoo County in 1985. After discovering how little profit there was in the traditional hog market, they began having the hogs processed and selling the meat themselves.

In the past two years they have built a thriving pork business which has enabled them to maintain row crops for a supplemental income.

RE-ELECT
CURTIS HOLSTON
Representative
District 106

THE DECISION IS YOURS

Four years ago you elected me to represent you in Jackson. You sent me with instructions to be strong, and to do what I thought was right.

I made strong political stands. I never walked away from a political fight, even though it may have been politically unwise. I made those stands for you.

Good things are happening in Mississippi, and I am glad to have been a part of it. On August 4th you must decide who you want to represent you. I hope you make that decision based on true facts.

I respectfully ask for your vote and support.

Immigration reform

New rules affect agriculture

Good faith and common sense are the best tools agricultural employers and employees can use in following the new immigration law mandated by Congress last year.

The Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986, also known as the Simpson-Rodino bill, provides aliens (non-citizens) an opportunity to apply for temporary resident status in the United States, and in some cases, to later apply for permanent resident status.

The Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS), the federal agency administering the act, has issued information addressing three concerns employers have: action to be taken, workers hired before the law was passed and illegal worker who may qualify to be legalized.

According to the guidelines released to the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service by the INS, agricultural employers should follow four basic principles in hiring. Employers should commit to employ only U.S. citizens and aliens authorized to work in the U.S.

Posters of this employment policy should be displayed to inform workers and job applicants of support for the law. The same procedures should be followed in hiring all new employees.

Finally, employees should not be discharged or should they be denied employment based on appearance or language.

While the INS prepares final regulations for hiring new employees, the following interim procedures should be used. Hire only citizens and aliens lawfully authorized to work in the U.S. Continue to advise all job applicants of hiring policy.

Require new employees to complete and sign the verification form designated by the INS to certify eligibility for employment. Examine documentation provided by new employees, record this information on the verification form and sign it.

Keep these forms for three years or for one year past the end of employment of the individual, whichever period is longer. If requested, present the form for inspection by INS or U.S. Department of Labor officials.

The INS has also issued guidelines regarding employees hired before Nov. 7, 1986. (The new act was passed Nov. 6, 1986.) There is no requirement to verify status of employees before Nov. 7, 1986. Employers may verify if they choose, but they must verify for all employees.

No sanction penalties can be imposed against an employer for merely retaining an illegal alien in the workforce before Nov. 7. Presence on a payroll before Nov. 7 does not give an illegal alien any right to legally remain in the U.S.

Illegal aliens must either be legalized or get permission from the INS to remain in the U.S. or they are subject to arrest and removal.

Certain illegal aliens may apply to the INS for legal resident status. Under the legalization program, residents in unlawful status since Jan. 1, 1972, may apply beginning now.

Field workers in perishable agricultural commodities for a 90-day period may apply beginning now under the Special Agricultural Worker (SAW) program.

Employers are encouraged to advise undocumented aliens that legalization and SAW assistance is available from the INS. They should also assist past and present employees who may qualify for these programs by providing documentation of employment history.

PROVEN LEADERSHIP

A man who knows where this county has been and knows where it is now heading.

Those who are raised in or have lived in crowded conditions are drawn to open spaces, but then begin to demand services that they enjoyed in urban surroundings. This is why I feel the growth of Hancock County must be presided over by individuals who have a keen appreciation of what we have now and an understanding for the needs of those who come to share in it with us.

Longtime residents of Hancock County know my record, which speaks for itself. In all of my endeavors as a public official, I have always conducted county business with them in mind.

For continued progress in Hancock County - Re-Elect KELLAR - Supervisor, District 2.

Oracles By W. Edwin Kearley

When the word "spiritual" is applied to a person, the speaker is saying that the individual is led by the Holy Spirit. There are many spirits in the world. Some are good and some are evil. There are two spirits which lead all other spirits. These two spirits are God and the devil.

In the New Testament the word "spiritual" is used in the form of an adjective and an adverb. The Greek word for spiritual in the adjective form is pneumatikos. It does not occur in the Septuagint nor in the gospels. It is fact an after pentecost word.

May we notice its New Testament use: (1) The angelic hosts, lower than God but higher in scale of being than man in his natural state, are spiritual hosts. The expression is "spiritual host of wickedness." (Ephesians 6:12) In this passage Paul is saying that our warfare is not against man, but against the evil influence of the "spiritual host of wickedness." This spiritual host is the devil and his crowd. They are called spiritual.

(2) Things that have their origin with God, and which, therefore, are in harmony with his character, as his law is spiritual. Paul says the "law is spiritual." (Romans 7:14) We are under law to Christ. (I Corinthians 9:21.)

(3) "Spiritual" is prefixed to the material type in order to indicate that what the type sets forth, not the type itself is intended.

Paul speaks of the "same spiritual meat, same spiritual drink, and spiritual rock." (I Corinthians 10:3-4)

(4) The purposes of God revealed in the gospel by the Holy Spirit. "Which things we speak...comparing spiritual things with spiritual."

(5) "Spiritual songs" are songs of which the burden is the things revealed by the spirit. (Ephesians 5:19; Colossians 3:16.)

b. Paul mentions "spiritual wisdom and understanding." (Colossians 1:9) This refers to wisdom and understanding of the revealed message to the inspired men.

c. Men in Christ who walk so as to please God are "spiritual." (Galatians 6:1)

(6) The blessings or gospel given to regenerate men are called "spiritual things." (Romans 15:27) "Spiritual blessings." (Ephesians 1:3)

(7) The activities Godward of regenerate men are "spiritual sacrifices." (I Peter 2:5-6)

(8) The resurrection body of the dead in Christ is "spiritual," that is such as is suited to the heavenly environment. (I Corinthians 15:44)

(9) The spiritual man walks by the spirit. Paul expresses it, "walk in the spirit." (Galatians 5:16) "If we live in the spirit, let us also walk in the spirit." (Galatians 5:25)

The spiritual state is normal for the believer, as Paul's contrast between the spiritual state and the babe in Christ. To the Corinthian's Paul said, "And I, brethren, could not speak unto you as unto spiritual, but as unto the carnal, even as unto babes in Christ. I have fed you with milk, and not with meat; for hitherto ye were not able to bear it, neither yet now are ye able. For ye are yet carnal; for where as there is among you envying, and strife, and divisions, are ye not carnal and walk as men?" (I Corinthians 3:1-3)

Such as are led by the spirit are spiritual. Evidence of spirituality is growth in "the grace and knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ." (II Peter 3:18)

Faulkner Conference at Oxford to draw worldwide audience

UNIVERSITY, Miss.—When the 14th annual Faulkner and Yoknapatawpha Conference unfolds Aug. 2-7 at the University of Mississippi, at least 29 states and seven foreign countries will be represented.

Scholars and students of the Nobel Prize-winning Mississippi author span the country, from the East Coast to the West, including Iowa, Colorado, Washington and Wyoming. They will come from Korea, Japan, China, Venezuela, West Germany, Argentina and the Soviet Union.

Not all of them are professors and academic scholars. To date, nearly 100 participants are scheduled. They include an accountant, a poet, a priest, a registered nurse, a social worker, a publisher, a dentist, a credit manager and a regional sales manager.

Registrations to date already confirm that this will be one of the largest conferences. It may partly be due to the theme, which is "Faulkner and the Craft of Fiction."

However, Conference Coordinator Anne Abadie believes it is more likely that appearances by literary star Eudora Welty and stage and screen star Ruth Ford, along with the first-day-of-issue Faulkner stamp ceremony by the U.S. Postal Service, are all greater drawing cards.

Conference highlights include the program with Welty at 3 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 2, in Fulton Chapel; the Faulkner stamp ceremony at 11 a.m. Monday, Aug. 3, in the School of Education auditorium; and a dramatic reading of the entire play "Requiem for a Nun" with Ruth Ford as Temple and actors from the Oxford-University community in the other parts at 8 p.m. Wednesday in Fulton Chapel. Miss Ford will also discuss her remembrances of Faulkner at 3 p.m. Friday, August 7, in the Ole Miss Union ballroom.

Miss Ford will be joined by a cast of local performers at 8 p.m. on Wednesday in Fulton Chapel for a dramatic reading of the play which was written expressly for her and adapted by her for the stage. The "Requiem" reading will be delivered from three podiums.

Miss Ford, who knew Faulkner while she was a student at Ole Miss in the 1930s, later became a good friend to the author while both were under contract to Warner Brothers in Hollywood.

She performed "Requiem" to glittering reviews in London in 1958, earning a Best Actress nomination in the London theatre. The production, which co-starred her late husband, Zachary Scott, was moved to New York the following year.

The Wednesday evening performance will be open to the general public, with tickets at $4 for adult, $3 for senior citizens and persons under 18, and $2 for Ole Miss students. Advance tickets may be purchased at the Ole Miss Union Central Ticket Office.

Several exhibits on the Oxford campus will relate to the conference, including displays celebrating the artistry of visiting speakers Eudora Welty and Ruth Ford and photographs of the North Mississippi area that was the setting for much of William Faulkner's fiction.

The University Museums are showing "Welty I and II," an exhibit of 32 black and white photographs made by the Pulitzer Prize-winning Jackson author in the early 1930s, when she traveled across Mississippi as a publicist for the Works Progress Administration. The exhibit was assembled from over 1,200 negatives on file in the Mississippi Department of Archives and History and is part of the traveling exhibits program of the department's State Historical Museum.

In the University Museums' lower gallery, an award-winning photographer, Mille Moorhead of Oxford will exhibit photographs taken in Lafayette County and locales within a 100-mile radius of Oxford. Sculptural pieces by Rod Moorhead of Toby Pottery will also be shown.

The John Davis Williams Library will feature a display of materials relating to Faulkner, Ms. Welty and Ms. Ford.

Displays will be in the Mississippi Room, where a 20-page souvenir booklet of Welty memorabilia will be sold during the conference for $5 each.

Other photographs of Southern people and places by Dallas art photographer Ferne Koch will be on display at the Center for the Study of Southern Culture.

Gulfport Chapter No. 1496 Women of The Moose

The Women of the Moose, Gulfport Chapter No. 1496, held their first meeting of the new fiscal year in July at the Gulfport Moose Lodge.

The College of Regents Committee was in charge of the program. Collegian Judy Martin served as chairman. Collegian Sue Ross, from the Slidell Chapter, was invited to preside over the ceremonies for the evening.

The program was given in honor of the newest member of the College of Regents of Gulfport Chapter No. 1496, Dorothy Meggers. She received her College of Regents degree at graduation ceremonies at Mooseheart, Ill. in May. Dorothy gave a resume of her accomplishments since she joined the organization in Antigo, Wisc. She joined the Gulfport Chapter in 1979 when her family relocated in this area.

The Red Tassel Ceremony was performed for Collegian Judy Martin. She was invested with the Red Tassel by Past Deputy Grand Regent of Mississippi Hazel Easterling. The two collegians are sisters. Past Deputy Grand Regent Easterling is also a charter member of the Gulfport Chapter formed in 1960.

The Enrollment Ceremony was performed by the College of Regents in full regalia. Carolyn Todd was enrolled as a new chapter member. She was placed on the Library Committee with her sponsor Collegian Betty Matheny. Mary Yvonne Davis was re-enrolled as a Home Chapter of Mooseheart. She was also placed on her sponsor, Wanda Berthelot's committee.

The Gulfport chapter was also honored to entertain the present Mississippi Deputy Grand Regent Shirley Swinney. She is a member of the North Biloxi Chapter No. 528.

During her address, she introduced the incoming deputy grand regent for the state, Guy Nell Killinger. Killinger received this honor at the International Convention held in Orlando, Fla. in May. She has been a member of Gulfport Chapter for years and was a member of Stroudsburg, Pa. Chapter No. 1004.

Other invited guests from the North Biloxi Chapter were Collegian Faye Thorton and co-workers Elsie Richard, Mary Newton and Carmen Showalter.

Attending also were members of the Gulfport Chapter, Collegians Anna E. Adams, Eileen Kilgore, Janet L. Smith, Betty Matheny and co-workers Betty Coward, Gloria Burnett, Barbara Cowart, Cara Sue Kunz, Arlie Ladner, Theo Bickford, Wendy Thomas, Helen Bogart and Wanda Berthelot.

A salad supper was served, with a game and prizes awarded to all.

SHERIFF RONALD PETERSON'S
Leadership Record

HIGH SCHOOL LEADERSHIP

Sheriff Peterson, at Bay St. Louis High School, was elected by his classmates president of his class all four years. He was also captain of the football, basketball and baseball team in his senior year, and upon graduation received the Most Outstanding Athlete Award.

COLLEGE LEADERSHIP

At Pearl River Junior College, Sheriff Peterson was chosen a monitor in charge of his dormitory.

MILITARY LEADERSHIP

Sheriff Peterson served four years in the United States Marine Corps and is a Vietnam veteran. In December 1965, Sheriff Peterson, then a squad leader serving in Vietnam, guided a squad of Marines deep into the jungles of Vietnam on a reconnaissance patrol to gather information about enemy activity. Under extremely hazardous conditions and enemy fire, Sheriff Peterson accomplished his mission and was meritoriously promoted to the rank of Sergeant. He received numerous military medals and upon completion of his military service, he received an honorable discharge and was highly recommended for re-enlistment.

LAW ENFORCEMENT LEADERSHIP

• Sheriff Peterson has been serving as your Sheriff for the last 7½ years. Prior to that, he was a Narcotics Investigator, Chief Investigator, and Chief Deputy. He has 16 continuous years service at the Hancock County Sheriff's Department. During Sheriff Peterson's administration, more criminal indictments have been returned in the history of Hancock County. Of the Grand Jury indictments returned, Sheriff Peterson's office has an unbelievable 99% conviction rate.

• Sheriff Peterson has an extensive background in Narcotic Investigation and will continue to focus his leadership toward the drug problem in Hancock County. He has participated in over 1400 drug-related operations that resulted in hundreds of arrests and convictions occurred in Sheriff Peterson's Administration. During these undercover operations, large seizures of money, cars and assets were taken from the drug dealers. The Sheriff's Department can now purchase two police vehicles a year from money (confiscated) from drug dealers on the interest along, while the principal of $250,000 stays intact in a local bank. This results in a savings to the taxpayer.

• Sheriff Peterson was instrumental in getting the new Hancock County Criminal Justice Facility with the help of the voting public. The new facility is now operating efficiently, and is now operating very business like. By housing federal inmates, an income of over $300,000.00 a year is paid to Hancock County, that makes the jail self-supporting. A county-inmate work program has also been implemented. Prisoners are now working at a county farm to raise vegetables to cut cost on the food bill at the new facility. This, also, results in a savings to the taxpayer.

• Sheriff Peterson is instrumental in leading murder investigations that occurred in Hancock County. Since he was elected Sheriff, Hancock County, has an excellent record for solving these violent type crimes. By solving these crimes, the murder rate has dropped tremendously in Hancock County this year.

• Sheriff Peterson is a leader in all types of modern law enforcement techniques. He is a graduate of the Mississippi Law Enforcement Officers Training Academy basic police class. He graduated from the Law Enforcement Academy's investigation class. He is a graduate of the University of Mississippi's narcotic class and attended numerous law enforcement seminars throughout the state. He is a member of the Mississippi Sheriffs Association and National Sheriffs Association.

In 1983, Sheriff Peterson was re-elected by the widest majority of votes than any other sheriff candidate in the history of Hancock County. He is again asking for your help on August 4.

Turning trash into cash: Goodwill Investment Recovery Project

Stricter guidelines for charitable tax deductions and growing competition for donations have put many charitable organizations' future in the dark.

But Goodwill Industries of South Mississippi has begun to change the way it does business in hopes of making the future a little brighter.

"Faced with our first revenue loss in 12 years, Goodwill decided this year to seek contract work with area businesses under what we call the Investment Recovery Project," said Leroy Modenbach, executive director. "and what better skill to offer than our area of expertise - recycling."

Companies like Mississippi Power Company and South Central Bell often generate excess materials or worn parts which they normally store or dispose of.

Because Goodwill has developed an expertise in recycling junk into treasure, all three organizations are turning trash into cash.

Mississippi Power Company first approached Goodwill Industries to take over sorting and baling discarded wire that is sold for scrap.

The company collects a large amount of excess wire, but not enough to justify paying employees to prepare it for scrap.

Mississippi Power Company helped Goodwill acquire the necessary equipment to do the job economically and generate funds for both organizations.

When line connectors on South Central Bell telephone lines got dirty or were damaged, the parts were thrown away because it was not economically feasible to repair them.

Goodwill, with their available work force trained in recycling, is able to put the line connectors in working condition and shares the savings with South Central Bell.

Goodwill also cleans and sorts old nuts and bolts for South Central Bell so the parts can be used again.

The ventures with Mississippi Power Company and South Central Bell are going so well, Modenbach says the organization is looking to expand its contract work.

"We could very easily get into light assembly work, landscaping or janitorial contracts with businesses," said Modenbach. "In fact we would like for businesses to call us if they have work of such nature."

Modenbach said Goodwill of South Mississippi would like to secure government contract work available to organizations using handicapped labor.

"We would even consider combining efforts with other handicapped organizations in the area to broaden the base of skilled laborers to better attract such contracts."

Unlike many charitable organizations, Goodwill Industries depends very little on monetary donations. Their cash is generated by handicapped workers repairing and cleaning donated appliances and clothing to sell at retail outlets in Biloxi, Gulfport and Bay St. Louis.

As other charities are facing dropping cash donations, Goodwill's collection of hard goods and clothes is diminishing.

"More and more people are having garage and yard sales to help with the household budget," Modenbach said. "So instead of dropping off clothing and household articles at the Goodwill box, people are selling them."

Modenbach said the resurgence of swap meets and second hand stores also cuts into the revenues of Goodwill of South Mississippi enough to make the organization look at different ways to raise funds. Contracting out Goodwill's services was an obvious choice.

"Our mission is to teach handicapped people marketable skills," Modenbach said. "With the Investment Recovery Project, our workers are dealing with top notch companies in a real world environment which gives them the best training we can offer."

A sideline benefit of Goodwill's partnership with Mississippi Power Company is the use of the wire baling machine and a forklift to pack huge amounts of unusable clothing to be sold for scrap. Goodwill previously used a much smaller baling machine and moved the bales by hand, a more tedious and less safe process.

"Although the Investment Recovery Project is still in an infancy stage as a revenue producer, it's present and potential value is tremendous," Modenbach said.

"Mississippi Power Company and South Central Bell are not getting rich from this project but they are making money from what would be discarded and we are generating funds without asking for handouts."

"What really counts is that our workers are gaining the experience and pride in knowing they can do a job good enough to work in the private sector. And that's what really matters."

Martin Marietta unit wins '86 NASA Excellence Award

Washington, D.C.—Martin Marietta Corporation's Michoud Aerospace company at New Orleans has won the National Aeronautics and Space Administration 1986 Excellence Award for Quality and Productivity.

Martin Marietta designs and assembles the External Tank that fuels the Space Shuttle at NASA's Michoud Assembly Facility, where 42 tanks have been delivered at a rate averaging nine days ahead of schedule.

Martin Marietta has reduced costs of the tanks by cutting the number of manufacturing hours by fifty-three percent and lowering non-manufacturing labor support by sixty-four percent. At the same time, the company improved the quality by reducing the number of manufacturing discrepancies seventy-six percent.

NASA established the award program in 1985 to encourage quality and productivity in the aerospace industry.

Dr. James Fletcher, NASA administrator, said: "In keeping with this goal, NASA has presented the Excellence Award for Quality and Productivity to those aerospace corporations—large and small—whose products or services exemplify the highest standards of performance."

Richard M. Davis, president of Martin Marietta Michoud Aerospace, said: "Martin Marietta shares NASA's commitment to quality and productivity, two elements that are critically important if we are to maintain America's long-held position as one of the greatest manufacturing nations in the world. We are extremely proud to receive the NASA Excellence Award in recognition of our long-standing commitment to Mission Success."

The company builds the External Tanks at Michoud under contract to the NASA Marshall Space Flight Center, Huntsville, Ala.

Miserere opening at NOMA

Eighteen selections from "Miserere," by Georges Rouault, a series of prints that attack human pain and suffering yet point to compassion and redemption through faith in Christ, will be on view at the New Orleans Museum of Art Aug. 15 - Sept. 30.

Rouault (1871-1958), was a French artist who mastered the intaglio, an etching in copper made by using acid to engrave the surface of the metal. He was a Catholic artist and the themes of suffering and redemption in Christ dominate all his works.

Rouault worked between 1916 and 1918, and 1922 through 1927, to create "Miserere" which was first envisioned to be a two-volume publication of 100 plates. The volumes were to be titled Miserere and Guerre (Misery and War), but Rouault only completed 58 plates, published in 1948 with the title "Miserere."

Evidence of Rouault's indignation over human vices tempered by compassion and his dream for a brotherhood of mankind in Christ is found in the titles of the works in the exhibition: "Man is a Wolf to Man; Are We Not Convicts?" and "That Ye Love One Another."

The images in "Miserere" are powerful, heavy works that emerge from a deep black background. Not satisfied with the original copper plates, Rouault reworked them through as many as 15 states before he was satisfied.

'Each one teach one' eliminates illiteracy

The following article is from a grant from the Mississippi Committee for the Humanities, Mississippi Press Association.

THE READING DOCTOR

By Cheryl Shannon
Dr. Frank Laubach, Mississippi.

Thousands of previous Mississippians are learning to read and write, thanks in part to this gentle man. Who was Dr. Laubach? In 1920, Dr. Frank Laubach, Baptist missionary in the Philippines, where he originated the method of teaching adult Moros to read and write in their own language, which had never been written out. Laubach's system of writing the Moros' language in our Roman alphabet.

The Moros' language was a simple language with vowel sounds and twelve consonant sounds. Using all the sounds, Laubach then made charts from which the Moros to read.

Then the Great Depression and Dr. Laubach's mission were cut off. He told the world that the literacy campaign had to stop. Wanting to learn to read and write, the chief stated his solution: that no one could misspell. "I'll make everybody learn how to read teach someone else. I'll kill them."

Previous adult literacy courses in Mississippi have been few and far between. None seemed to work well. Many students dropped out. The main reason that many illiterate adults dropped out was that they needed the full attention of the instructor, who had other students who needed his or her help.

Illiterate adults can become discouraged and frustrated quickly. However, the Laubach tutor/student concept (one-on-one) has a real appeal to illiterate adults. A student is comforted when he thinks, "I only have to 'open up' to one person about my handicap of not being able to read, not a whole classroom of other adults."

One reason that the Laubach method works is the each-one-teach-one philosophy; total attention is given to someone who has never had that attention. Another is that it has had 50 years of revision, taking out what had not consistently worked and emphasizing what does work.

The phonetic approach is the key. To learn to read one must have a code or key to help break down the words.

Today, Dr. Laubach's methods, and the work of hundreds of volunteer tutors are helping many Mississippians to say, "For the first time in my life, I am reading."

(Cheryl Shannon is coordinator of the Lauderdale County Volunteer Literacy Program, which is housed at Meridian Junior College.)

Reading is sacred art to Laubach's visit

A collection of little-known Christian religious art in the Catholic tradition will be featured in an upcoming exhibit.

'Sacred Treasures: An Exhibition of the Papal Visit to the Museum Aug. 15 through 18.

Featured in the exhibit are religious artifacts, many of which are jewels. Most of the artifacts are ceremonial in nature and pagentry of the Catholic Church.

The collection will include rare needlework medallions, crosses, and relics of both the Cross and St. Louis King of France.

At the center of the exhibit will be the 1938 Eucharistic monstrance featured at the World's Fair Pavilion, and now on exhibit to NOMA.

The monstrance, designed by Bernard and Grunig, of New Orleans, is a stunning work of art in the history of the early 20th century.

The embossed monstrance depicts the first Eucharistic vision on July 17, 1734 by the nun, Sister Thérèse of the Assumption, founder of New Orleans.

Heavily jeweled with 231 diamonds and other stones, the piece was several works from the museum's Kress paintings, as well as selections of Central and South American religious art and sculptures will be on display to complement the other pieces in the exhibition.

This exhibition of exceptionally rare and beautiful treasures focuses on the sacred works of art used in liturgical and devotional Catholic settings, conveying the artistic legacy of the Roman Catholic Church in New Orleans.

★ NATIVE-FAMILY MAN

"I am a life-long resident of Hancock County and have served Hancock County and you the people of District One for the past 12 years as your Supervisor." I respectfully ask for your vote and support on August 4, that I may continue to work for the betterment of our community.

I am married to the former Christine Breau, and we have four children, Scott, Anne, Bert and Dinah.

★ EDUCATED AND CAPABLE OF SPEAKING FOR THE PEOPLE OF DISTRICT 1

Completed Pre-Engineering at LSUNO; attended LSU Baton Rouge; and throughout my tenure as your Supervisor I have studied and completed numerous courses in Engineering and Administration.

Unit System Changes Role of Supervisor

★ KNOWLEDGEABLE ABOUT ADMINISTRATIVE DUTIES

Instead of a Road Maintenance Position, Supervisors serving under the Unit System are policy makers and are totally into Administrative Duties. This makes it ever so important that your Supervisor has Administrative Abilities. We work closely with governmental agencies and municipalities.

★ KNOWS HIS RESPONSIBILITIES

Among our other prime responsibilities are over-all planning of the county, setting the yearly budget, setting policies and procedures for employees, making appointments on Port and Harbor Commission, the Hancock County Medical Center, the Planning Commission, and Wastewater Commission. Supervisors also work with the Library board and many other agencies.

★ FUTURE PLANNING FOR JOB AVAILABILITY IN A POOR ECONOMY

Even though the National economy is bad, Hancock County is the fastest growing county in the South and thus makes our future planning ever so important.

Begin at the beginning...in the schools.

Drugs are behind most of this county's crime problems. We have to prevent the problem early with a comprehensive drug and alcohol awareness program in the schools.

Crime won't wait, and neither should you.

In law enforcement with the right kind of 24 hour patrol, we can be there when you need us.

The Highway 603 deathtrap is this county's biggest killer. It will be four-laned. But until then, we need a special patrol program to reduce the DUI accidents and enforce highway safety.

Training to be the best.

When a deputy arrives he needs to know what to do. Since an officer is usually first to arrive, all deputies should be trained in emergency medical procedures.

A new county, a new sheriff. Hancock is the fastest growing county in the state. The sheriff's office needs to keep pace with modern-day professionalism.

HATTIESBURG—Charles Brent has turned a fascination for building model airplanes into a full-fledged hobby that affords him a "bird's eye view" of the world from 18,000 feet above it.

The 56-year-old engineering technology professor at the University of Southern Mississippi has taken up "soaring"—flying a self-towed, 90-horsepower glider that, he says, gets as good a gas mileage as his Volkswagen Rabbit.

"Soaring is real flying," Dr. Brent said. "It's doing it like the birds do—pure flying without much power, as compared to flying in an airplane, where a motor and propeller are pulling you up and down."

Brent said he always wanted to construct a model airplane that was "more modern" than standard aircraft. When he realized his limitations in getting it built he decided to take flying lessons and pursue his interest from another angle.

"I decided if I was ever going to fly, that now was the time," he said of his decision three years ago. Training involved obtaining a private pilot's license and additional lessons in soaring.

"Soaring takes a light craft with a big wingspread," the 27-year educator said, explaining that the $50,000 Grobe 109B glider, which he owns jointly with wife Carolyn and USM foreign language Professor Dr. Roger Johnson, has a span of 57 feet and weighs 1,840 pounds when fully loaded with two passengers.

"Every flight in a glider is an adventure. It takes time to get over your fear of heights but you can go up to 18,000 feet, climbing 600 feet each minute," the Hattiesburg resident said.

"When you leave the ground, the people, cars, roads and buildings look like they are laid out perfectly. It's hard to believe from up there that the world is the way it is."

"Soaring is the most peaceful sport there is. When the engine is shut down, there is very little noise and you almost don't have the sensation of flying," Brent continued, noting he usually soars at 60-75 miles per hour or motors at at least 120 miles per hour.

The goal of soaring, Brent pointed out, is to find a "thermal"—a hot-air draft rising off the earth's surface, which is "climbed" to obtain the needed altitude.

He explained that the challenge is to find enough currents to get the desired altitude for reaching a particular destination, whether it's 20 miles away or 3,000 miles away.

If no currents are found, he said, "you're back on the ground in 20 minutes."

Brent usually soars at least two weekends a month, and often takes along one of his three sons—Ronnie, 32; Richard, 30; and Robbie, 28.

So far, he has visited Utah's Blue Mountain, New York State's Niagara Falls, Stewart, Fla., and the Grand Canyon. He also takes the glider on short business trips concerning his doctoral research area of solar heating and cooling.

Brent said it takes at least an hour or more to "get a fix" on the peaceful surroundings of gliding and obtain a sense of accomplishment.

"Anyone who hasn't tried soaring has missed a unique experience," he said, expressing an intent to begin competitive soaring in the future.

Better prices for dairymen

By Rebekah Therrell
Mississippi Cooperative
Extension Service

MISSISSIPPI STATE—Mississippi dairymen can expect better prices this year. As a result of the federal Dairy Herd Buyout Program, milk prices are above support prices for the first time in more than five years.

Dr. Charles Walden, an agricultural economist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service, said the program has been a success.

"We have reduced the number of dairy farmers, the number of cattle and the supply of milk," Walden said. "As a consequence of that, we have strengthened the price position of milk."

Walden says milk prices will be down a slight 1 to 2 percent this year, but that the dairy industry looks healthy for 1987.

Other factors that will enable dairymen to make a better profit this year are lower feed costs and a surprising 2 percent increase in milk consumption.

The Dairy Herd Buyout Program has left about 730 dairies in Mississippi which is a reduction of about 17.5 percent. The reduction is slightly less than that nationwide. As a result, production is down more than 3 percent.

Walden said bid prices were good in the buyout program and that most dairymen were satisfied with the prices they got for their herds.

"Those that wanted to get out of the dairy business were allowed to do so in a profitable way with the help of this program," he said. "There have been some farmers saying they would like to see more programs such as this."

The Dairy Herd Buyout Program will be terminated in August and Secretary of Agriculture Richard Lyng said the program will not be reinstated.

Farmers who participated in the program will not be able to return to the dairy business for five years. Walden said he does not think many farmers will get back into the dairy business after the five-year period, but that milk production will be carefully monitored.

"If in 1988 supplies begin to go up again, and that is the major problem that we have had in the industry, then we will have to take additional action at that time," he said.

"Right now," Walden said, "The general advice for the industry is to sit tight for the next 24 to 36 months."

The dairy industry is currently spending about $200 million on dairy products promotion.

GOOD TIME ROCK 'N' ROLL celebrates some of the greatest stars from the golden age of rock and roll music including The Crystals, left, and Bo Diddley, right. The program airs Sunday, Aug. 9, 2:30 p.m. on Mississippi ETV.

Scianna-Slocum

Donna Day Slocum and Joseph Thomas Scianna exchanged wedding vows June 27 in a double ring candlelight ceremony at Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church. The Reverend Monsignor James McGough officiated.

Nuptial music was presented to organist Lawrence Smith and soloist Edward Ishem.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a traditional gown of white matte taffeta with Victorian bodice, high lace collar on a yoke of English net, edged with lace ruffle and ball gown puffed sleeves. The bouffant skirt and chapel length train featured rows of lace ruffles near the hemline. She wore a tear-drop cap covered with pearls with illusion pouf and fingertip veil.

The bride carried a cascade of white roses, rubrum lilies and babies breath.

Dwayne LaFontaine of Bay St. Louis was best man.

Groomsmen were Luke M. Scianna Jr., brother of the groom; Tad Black, cousin of the groom; and Dennis Manieri, all of Bay St. Louis. John R. Jordan of Franklin, La. was usher.

ETV Brief

OSCAR WILDE

"Great Performances" presents Oscar Wilde's hilarious 19th-century comedy of errors, "The Importance of Being Earnest," at 9 p.m., Friday, Aug. 7, on Mississippi ETV. The program will be rebroadcast at 1 p.m., Wednesday, Aug. 12.

This play revolves around two friends, Jack (Gary Bond) and Algernon (Jeremy Clyde), who both assume the identity of Jack's younger brother, Ernest. Algernon falls in love with Jack's ward Cecily Cardew (Ann Thornton), and Jack falls in love with Algernon's cousin, Gwendolen Fairfax (Gabrielle Drake).

Both women accept proposals of marriage from the men, saying they have always been attracted to the name Ernest. However, a name has little to do with a person's character, as they soon find they are engaged to the same man, Ernest Worthing.

This production also features Dame Wendy Hiller.

DISASTER WORKSHOP—Bonnie Neorr, state disaster chairperson for American Red Cross, left, and Dorothy Spalding, Harrison-Hancock County disaster chairperson, serve as instructors at a Saturday workshop for Hancock County's disaster shelter volunteers. The two covered various topics regarding the shelters, including regulations on matters ranging from fire safety to health. An Introduction to Disaster Services Class has been scheduled for Monday, Aug. 3, from 8:30 p.m. until

9 p.m. at the Retired Senior Volunteers Program center in the Valena C. Jones building on Old Spanish Trail. Additional classes are being scheduled, Hancock County Red Cross Coordinator Jeanne Garcia said. At least 10 people are needed for each class. For pre-registration or more information call Garcia at 467-7609 from 9 a.m. until 11 a.m. Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays or at 467-7991. (Staff photo by Debra Bisnette)

Senior workers placement center opened in Gulfport

The Senior Workers' Placement Center recently opened offices in Gulfport.

Gay Collins, project director, says the Center serves workers 55 years of age or older who live in Harrison or Hancock County, and who meet certain income guidelines for the past six months.

"We are a private corporation operating under Department of Labor funding," Ms. Collins says, "so we are able to serve both our clients and employers in the area without a fee being charged to either of them."

Collins says a job bank of both prospective employees and employers has been established at the center.

"Not only do these people have solid backgrounds with many years of experience in various fields, but they have proven over a lifetime of holding responsible jobs that they are stable and dependable workers."

Information about the program may be obtained by calling the Senior Workers' Placement Center weekdays from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., at 863-9886.

IRS offers two tax withholding forms

Employees have two ways to figure their 1987 tax withholding allowances, according to the Internal Revenue Service.

An employee can use either Form W-4 or W-4A, "Employee's Withholding Allowance Certificate." The 2-page Form W-4A is easier to fill out than the 4-page Form W-4.

The Tax Reform Act of 1986 requires all employees to submit a 1987 Form W-4 or W-4A to their employers before October 1, 1987.

IRS has urged workers to submit their new withholding form as soon as possible so that the amount of tax withheld from their pay closely matches the tax they will owe for the year.

Employees do not need to fill out both forms. For example, employees who have already given their employer a 1987 Form W-4 do not need to also fill out a Form W-4A, the IRS pointed out, unless they wish to change their withholding.

Form W-4A is easier than Form W-4 because many employees can fill out only page one of the Form W-4A to figure their withholding allowances. For instance, people with one income who do not itemize deductions generally do not need to use the worksheets on page 2 of Form W-4A.

Form W-4A is not always as precise as the 4-page Form W-4, according to the IRS. This means that in some cases Form W-4A may cause more or less tax to be withheld from wages than an employee wishes. Generally, however, Form W-4A is more likely to produce over-withholding than underwithholding.

Taxpayers who wish to be sure that they get a refund can fill out the Form W-4 or W-4A worksheets and then claim fewer withholding allowances than they are entitled to. Free IRS Publication 919, "Is My Withholding Correct?" can be used by employees to figure whether they are having the right amount of tax withheld. The publication helps taxpayers estimate their 1987 tax and their 1987 withholding. They then can compare the two amounts to see whether too much or too little tax is being withheld.

Taxpayers generally can get

Form W-4 and W-4A from their employers. Form W-4 and Form W-4A are also available free, along with Publication 919, at any local IRS office or by calling 1-800-424-3676

(in Hawaii and Alaska, call the IRS "Forms Only" number in your local directory). Many banks, post offices, and libraries also may have Forms W-4 and W-4A.
